Outline

Assessment in Community-Based Learning at JCCC

1. What is Community-Based Learning
2. Service Learning
3. Civic Leadership Program
Community-Based Learning Mission

Aligned with JCCC’s mission to transform lives and strengthen communities, the office of Community-Based Learning is dedicated to supporting teaching strategies that utilize service-learning, community involvement, and real-world learning opportunities to encourage civic engagement in our students in addition to improving our community as a whole.
Civic Engagement Defined

- Individual and collective actions designed to identify and address issues of public concern
- Can range from individual volunteerism, organizational involvement, activism, education, philanthropy, social entrepreneurship, to governance/policy participation etc.
Quantitative Literacy
Use quantitative skills to analyze and process information.

Critical Thinking
Acquire, interpret, and analyze information and apply appropriate problem-solving techniques to determine and evaluate solutions.

Communication
Communicate effectively with clarity and purpose.

Social Responsibility
Be prepared to practice community engagement that reflects democratic citizenship, environmental responsibility, diversity, and international awareness.

Personal Responsibility
Be independent lifelong learners who have the skills necessary for economic, physical, social, mental and emotional wellness.
Social Responsibility

Be prepared to practice community engagement that reflects democratic citizenship, environmental responsibility, diversity, and international awareness.
Side Note

- Our assessment not based on Social Responsibility ILO, but rather, old student learning outcome: Demonstrate an understanding of the broad diversity of the human experience and the individual’s connection to society.
Programs
Service-Learning

A teaching/learning strategy that integrates meaningful community service with instruction and reflection to enrich the learning experience, teach civic responsibility, and strengthen communities.
My question:

Does service learning create more civically minded students? [civic-minded: individuals that are motivated by or show concern for the public good or humanity as a whole]
Assessment Challenges

- Multitudes of different classes offer service learning
- Students volunteering at many different sites
- How to get quantitative data from qualitative field
- Lack of motivation from faculty and students to participate in assessment
- Not every student in every class completes service learning
1. Surveys sent to faculty and students
2. Likert scale
3. Comment section
I don't think it changed the views of the population as much as it changed their understanding of the different experiences of various populations. One student in particular volunteered with Head Start, and wrote in their reflections how the experience really opened their eyes to the socio-economic barriers for children. Most, if not all, students noted that it made them more interested in some aspect of volunteering or the work that the organization does. I'm not sure that it make them question their values per say, but perhaps made them re-think how they view community problems. By that I mean the values were potentially there before, but their experiences opened their eyes to issues.

My students very much enjoyed their work with the CLEAR program this semester. Both Courtney Barden and Tara Karaim were extremely helpful in explaining the process and helping to organize the students. The students especially loved getting to know the CLEAR students on a more personal level and several were impressed with the teachers in the CLEAR classes.

Great experience to gain understanding of a construction site and the processes of building and design. Giving back and understanding where they can make a difference was priceless. I will be keeping this in my course as a permanent entity for students to learn and grow.

This is my first year doing the project (as I am new here) and I am so impressed with the results! It was a pleasure to read their reflection papers! Thank you!

One student blatantly said this experience challenged her Leawood upbringing.

Describe How Service Learning Affected Your Understanding of Your Place in the Community.

Response

I worked with special needs kids at an animal shelter. Both of those places heightened my understanding of those two components of our community. Special needs people are just like regular people and all they want is to have fun and be understood. Working with them helped me understand them so much better. As for the animal shelter, I had always loved animals, when working at the shelter I saw how much all these animals wanted love and just that, but I also saw how much work it took to keep a shelter running, and that really the shelters solely rely on volunteers and donations.

I have a better understanding of the service learning.

I have done service for school away year since I started high school and I am very happy that it was part of a course this year as it helped to remind me how important it is to be an active member in assisting the people around me. I felt happy to be a part of it and it made me very grateful for the opportunity and excited to do it again.

It generated a lot of interest from. I feel like doing it again.

I was able to see how furthering my education in social work would provide new professional opportunities to serve my community.

I saw that there is a need for social workers in schools.

While volunteering at voter registration, I found out how little people understood the system or how easy it was to register to vote. I knew that community service was important, but having actual experience put more in perspective and placed more weight in it for me. I also now understand why they need for young volunteers to help with signing up potential voters. Without volunteers doing this, this past election probably would have been entirely different. Another thing I didn't realize was how much I would enjoy doing it. I'm going to do it again next year.

People who need friends and extra help succeed and also benefit the volunteers just as much as they get benefited.

Every little thing helps.

Working with clear allowed me to work with students with exceptionalities. I was able to see how different but truly alike we all were. It was a great experience. Students, despite their abilities all have things in common.

I was able to enhance my knowledge of the students in an environment that was unique. For them to feel comfortable talking to me about their personal life and ask advice in the end, made me feel welcome and opened my eyes to the thrive these students deal with.

I volunteered on Sundays at the Kansas City Center for Inclusion. Serving the LGBT community of KC, we often have individuals from outside this community wander in. The Center is located in downtown Kansas City, at Main and 43rd. This area has a high homelessness rate and a high poverty rate. My upbringing, in the southern suburbs of KC shocked me somewhat from this reality. Now, I have the chance to engage with people I would not normally be able to serve.

I realized that my skills as a bilingual person were of great use when serving for the Hispanic community. I can advocate for those who can't advocate for themselves and that was a very powerful discovery I made serving at el Centro.

I found the service learning component to be a wonderful real life application of the course materials and a great way to learn the main themes of the course by being an active member of your community.

I was able to see the need for the service I am learning and how I can benefit those around me.

It made me aware to a different population that I do not engage with in my everyday life and what an impact we can make to help others.

The service learning experience helped to show me how much our community needs to be educated on literacy awareness.

SL Assessment

- Right now, collecting data
- Eventually will study trends of quantitative data and create rubrics for assessing comments
- Hope to find consistent or increase of civic mindedness
The Civic Leadership Program combines community service, leadership training, coursework and reflection to encourage you to become an active leader in your community.
Assessment

- Social Responsibility ILO
- Survey - Likert scale
- Rubric to assess final papers
1. Students will demonstrate successful leadership skills in regards to issues of public concern within their discipline and their community.
2. Students will demonstrate evidence of adjustment in own attitudes and beliefs because of working within and learning from diversity of communities and cultures.
Survey Questions

1. The combination of community service and leadership training in the Civic Leadership Program has taught me how to demonstrate successful leadership skills.
   - Strongly Disagree – Disagree – Agree – Strongly Agree

2. The combination of community service and leadership training has made me aware of social issues and issues of public concern within my community.
   - Strongly Disagree – Disagree – Agree – Strongly Agree

3. The Civic Leadership program has positively affected the frequency with which I will engage in leadership and civic acts in the future (such as voting, volunteering, or political engagement etc.)?
   - Strongly Disagree – Disagree – Agree – Strongly Agree

4. The Civic Leadership program has adjusted my values and beliefs because of working within and learning from diversity of communities and cultures.
   - Strongly Disagree – Disagree – Agree – Strongly Agree

5. I connected my field of study with my Civic Leadership program activities.
   - Strongly Disagree – Disagree – Agree – Strongly Agree
Final Project Prompt

Write a 3-4 page essay that is a reflective culmination of all of your Civic Leadership activities. How did the Civic Leadership program affect your attitudes and beliefs towards the populations you served? How did the tasks you completed connect to your own academic field/discipline? What did you learn about leadership and civic action?

Writing Style
- Exemplary
  - Paper is well organized, uses excellent grammar, has little to no typos and spelling errors. There is a clear voice and excellent style throughout.
- Adequate
  - Paper has some grammatical and spelling issues that are slightly distracting. Paper is somewhat disorganized, choppy, or lacks a flow. Voice is present but not exemplary - can be too colloquial or scattered at points.
- Unsatisfactory
  - Grannatical and spelling issues distract reader from meaning of paper. Paper lacks organization and voice.

Topic
- Exemplary
  - Student has chosen one or more prompts from the assignment description and explored them fully. All points of essay relate back to things the student has learned or experienced in the Civic Leadership program.
- Adequate
  - Student has chosen to write about topics somewhat related to the final assignment prompt. The topics discussed seem distracted or off topic at points. Certain experiences and lessons learned do not relate to civic leadership.
- Unsatisfactory
  - The topic is discussed is vague, overgeneralized, or unrelated to the final discussion assignment prompts.

Reflection
- Exemplary
  - Student has drawn from personal experiences, mentioned direct observations, and analyzed the culmination of their civic leadership program to learn something new about themselves or their community.
- Adequate
  - Essay may lack personal reflection in terms of detail or analysis. It either remains vague about experiences in general or is a listing of experiences without analysis drawing everything today.
- Unsatisfactory
  - Essay includes no references to personal experiences or analysis of these experiences.

Social Responsibility
- Mastery 3.0 pts
- Progressing 2.0 pts
- Low/No Master 1.0 pts
Civic Engagement VALUE Rubric

for more information, please contact value@anu.edu

Definition

Civic engagement is “working to make a difference in the civic life of our communities and developing the combination of knowledge, skills, values, and motivation to make that difference. It means promoting the quality of life in a community through both political and non-political processes” (Excerpted from Civic Responsibility and Higher Education, edited by Thomas Ehrlich, published by Oryx Press, 2000, Preface, page vi.) In addition, civic engagement encompasses actions wherein individuals participate in activities of personal and public concern that are both individually life enriching and socially beneficial to the community.

Evaluators are encouraged to assign a zero to any work sample or collection of work that does not meet benchmark (cell one) level performance.
